Today

Will Rogers' $5,000.

An Old Engineer.

Our Money in Europe.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

FOR Mr. Will Rogers, publicist, actor, cowboy and philosopher, the flying problem is settled. Yesterday, for instance, he started from Beverly Hills in California by air to New York City, and in a day or two he will fly back again.

A few days ago Mr. Rogers offered to bet one of his old friends $5,000 that President Coolidge will run for President in 1928 regardless of his "I do not choose" statement. Mr. Rogers realizes now that his friend could not properly bet and take Mr. Rogers' $5,000 on a certainty, so the bet is off and Rogers is happy.

PERRY THOMAS, one of the oldest, most trustworthy engineers on the New York Central, was soon to retire—as soon as he had saved a little more money. Before the day came, however, he was killed in a head-on collision with a freight car, as he lay dying in the hospital the old engineer, desiring to free everybody else from blame, told witnesses the accident was his fault. He had run by a block signal in the fog.

THIS reminds the public how much depends on the railroad engineers. They should be better paid than they are now. And they might well be retired on full pay, without waiting until age dims their sight and dulls their nerves. The public would be willing to pay for it.

SENATOR GLASS of Virginia says President Coolidge has no right to control approval or disapproval of American loans abroad by private financial agencies.

But suppose Europe hordes to build up fighting machinery that might be sent against this country, would that make any difference to Senator Glass?

AND suppose bankers encourage Americans to invest money in European bonds drawing usurious rates of interest, that may be repudiated later on, would that make a difference?

BOLSHEVISM issues a manifesto abolishing the death penalty except for attacking the Soviet government. The working day is reduced to seven hours.

WHAT a surprise to childish Wall Street financiers who bought Keresky bonds, when a child might have known better. If Russia should work on a government, made the safest in the world by doing the most good for the greatest possible number of those governed.

The thing is not impossible. There is no other nation that takes seriously the rights and needs of the masses, except when forced to do so by strikes or other violence, disturbing to the "better classes."

We do fairly well in America by enabling the little man to have his automobile, radio, and savings bank account. But we DO NOT TAKE HIM SERIOUSLY.

MR. BARNES, British bishop of Birmingham, entering the pulpit of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, was denounced by a fellow clergyman as a "false heretical teacher." Bishop Barnes accepts the plain truths of geology written in the rocks. God certainly wrote that story in the rocks, according to the bishop, whatever may be said about other writings.

The Bishop even suggests the theory of evolution, with 95 per cent of other educated men in the world. Inge, dean of St. Paul's, even says that the attacks of inspiration to which St. Paul was subject, were really epileptic attacks.

These gentlemen would have been burned alive a few years ago, but that method of curing heresy has been abandoned for the present.

Flames Wipe Out Members of Family as They Sleep on Second Floor of Cleveland Building.

NEWLY ACQUIRED STOVE IS BLAMED

Bodies of Parents Found on Floor, While Children Huddled Close Together Near Door.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 19.—Trapped while they slept, Rufus Williams, laborer, his wife, and four children perished in a fire which destroyed their home here early today.

The dead children are: Bessie, 7; Andrew, 4; Annie May, 3, and Reta May, 4 months.

The family made its home in four rooms on the second floor of a brick building. A garage occupied the ground floor.

The fire was reported at about 2 o'clock this morning. Its origin has not yet been definitely determined, but Williams is believed to have bought a new stove several days ago and neighbors believe that this may have been the cause of the tragedy.

The bodies of the parents were on the floor beside their bed, while the bodies of the three older children were huddled close together near the door of their room, mute evidence of their futile attempt to escape. The baby's body was in its crib.

Firemen entered the rooms while the fire was still burning, but were too late. The victims were probably strangled almost to paralysis before they were fully awakened and given any opportunity to attempt escape.

Firemen Rescue Toledoans. TOLEDO, O., Oct. 19.—P. M. Batch and wife were rescued by firemen here early today, when they were trapped in the bedroom of their residence by fire. Batch was just recovering from a year's illness.

SIX ARE KILLED IN TRAIN BLAST

Calles Family Has Narrow Escape in Mexican Explosion.

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 19.—Six persons were killed, several others were injured seriously and members of the family of President Calles of Mexico had a narrow escape from death when a band of 60 armed men dynamited a train between Villa Reyes and Jural Del Barrio, south of San Luis Potosi, yesterday, according to reports received at Juarez today.

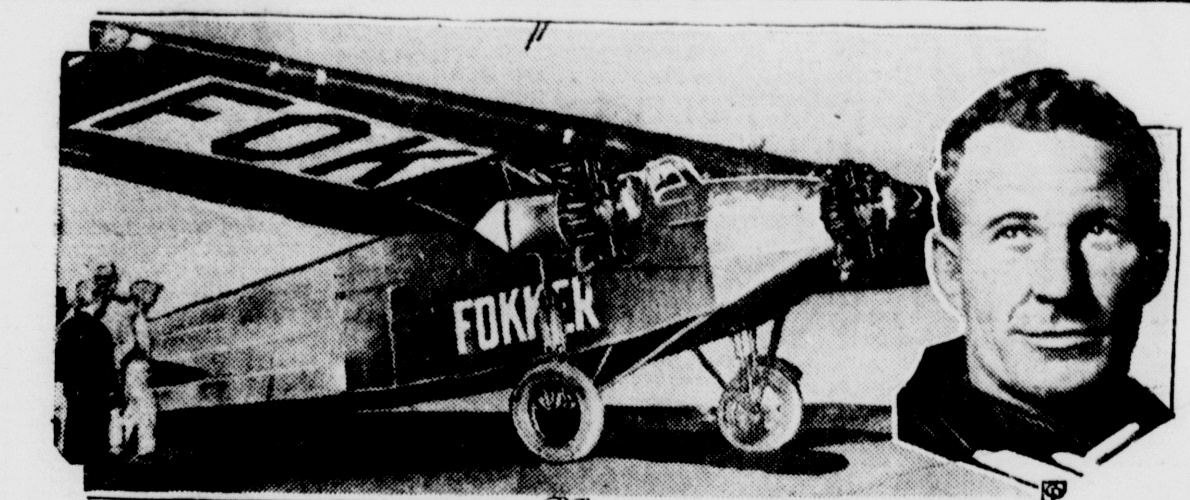

The identity of the members of the Calles family was not disclosed, but they are said to have been in a special car attached to the train, which was bound from Laredo to Mexico City.

According to the report the dynamite exploded beneath a second class coach near the front of the train and the engine was derailed.

The injured were taken to Mexico City. Federal troops were sent in pursuit of the dynamiters, according to the dispatch.

"We have not only been lavish in the public honors which have been conferred on our veterans," the president said, "but we have also bestowed upon them pensions and gratuities reaching down to every man in the ranks, with which no other country can make comparison." Ascribing the belated recognition of Meade's achievements to a change in public opinion, Mr. Coolidge asserted that there "are great compensations for the delay in the beauty and appropriateness of the memorial and in the demonstration of the enduring quality of his fame."

BURGLARS GET $1,250 PLUNDER IN EAST END

Ladies' and Men's Furnishings Obtained by Store Robbers.

MIDNIGHT JOBS

Auto Believed Used in Hauling Away Wearing Apparel.

Forcing entrance through a rear door and window, robbers early today looted the ladies' furnishing store of Mrs. Fannie Hoffrichter, First avenue and the Chambers department store, Mulberry street, East End, escaping with wearing apparel valued at $1,250.

The robberies were discovered by the proprietors when they prepared to open their places of business. Captain of Police Mason Conley and Patrolman William Lister investigated.

The burglars, believed to have used an automobile to carry away the loot, forced the kitchen door in the rear of the Hoffrichter building. They took one sealskin coat, muskrat coat, 10 ladies' dresses, sweater, two slickers, four pocketbooks, four boxes of ladies' hose, one box of men's hose and other articles. Mrs. Hoffrichter estimated her loss at $300.

Side window of the Chambers store was jimmied by the robbers. The loot here consisted of men's suits, hats, caps, sweaters, hose, neckwear, collars and shirts. Frank Chambers, owner of the store, placed his loss at $450.

EARL CARROLL GIVEN PAROLE

ATLANTA, Oct. 19.—Earl Carroll, New York theatrical producer who has secured parole after serving a little more than four months of his year-and-a-day sentence at the federal prison for perjury, will be released sometime tomorrow if the official papers arrive from Washington that "Warden W. Snook stated today."

"The papers, mailed last night, can hardly arrive in time for Carroll to leave today," he said.

"Carroll and I will have to sign the official papers and that's all. He walks out a free man, subject to the conditions of the parole, as soon as that's done."

Release of Carroll will end a celebrated case. It was marked by bitter court battles, vain efforts to obtain clemency from Washington and the collapse of the convicted man while enroute from New York to the prison here in a car with 20 other federal prisoners.

Cotes and Le Brix Hop From Rio De Janeiro.

The flyers' take-off was accomplished only after several futile attempts to get their heavily loaded plane to rise.

This flight marks the final stage of their voyage from Paris to the Argentine capital.

Cotes and Le Brix circled the field several times and then headed toward Buenos Aires, where they are expected about 5 p. m. today and where a tremendous welcome has been prepared for them.

As a novelty, the flyers planned to unfurl a huge Uruguayan flag when they pass over Montevideo, the capital of Uruguay, across the bay from Buenos Aires.

POLICE JAIL PRISONER WHO FLED HOSPITAL

West Virginia Dry Law Fugitive Held in Midland.

PAPERS SOUGHT

Charles Baker Had Served Part of 30-day Sentence.

Charles Baker, of Weirton, W. Va., convicted dry law violator, who escaped from the East Liverpool City hospital, last April, was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter by a jury in the Allegheny county criminal court, Pittsburgh, at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

The penalty, a prison sentence, was not passed.

The case went to the jury at 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after Mrs. Mumford, taking the witness stand in her own behalf, testified that she struck her husband with a rolling pin in self-defense. The jury was locked up over night.

"I did not mean to kill him. I did not even mean to hurt him. I only struck him with the rolling pin in my own defense." This was the high spot in the testimony of Mrs. Mumford.

The testimony of the defendant and Mrs. Ruth Kelly of 110 Stockton avenue, the only eye witness to the killing and the state's star witness, featured yesterday's session of the trial. An alleged bribe offer made to Mrs. Kelly to have her change her story or to leave town is to be investigated by the district attorney's office.

Mrs. Kelly, who was wanted as a witness, was arrested in the Northside Monday night and is alleged to have told officers that she was approached by a woman who tried to bribe her.

Describes Scene. Mrs. Kelly was called as one of the last witnesses for the prosecution and testified that she was at the Mumford house on the day of the killing and that she and the Mumfords had been drinking. She said they had gone to the second floor of the house and that Mumford insisted that his wife have another drink but that the latter refused and left the room. She said Mrs. Mumford returned to the room shortly with the rolling pin and struck her husband with it while his back was turned towards her. She said she left the house and notified the police.

Attempts of Attorney J. Howard Devlin for the defense to question Mrs. Kelly about her arrest were blocked by Assistant Attorney Roy Chalk objecting and being sustained by the court.

Mrs. Mumford called as one of the early witnesses in her own defense testified that she lived in constant fear of Mumford and that he had beaten her repeatedly. She said he had threatened her life in the morning of the day of the killing and that she left the house. She said she went to one of the Northside parks where she met Mrs. Kelly and took the latter home with her for her own protection.

WIDOW FACES PRISON TERM FOR DEATH OF HER HUSBAND

Pittsburgh Jury Returns Voluntary Manslaughter Verdict.

ALL-NIGHT DEBATE

Self-defense Pleaded in "Rolling Pin" Murder Case.

Mrs. Roxie B. Mumford, 42, formerly of East Liverpool, charged with murder in the death of her husband, Joseph B. FEDERAL COURT NOW IN SESSION

Judge William E. Baker Hands Out Sentences in Liquor Cases.

Approximately 50 persons pleaded guilty to charges of violating the federal liquor laws when arraigned yesterday before Judge William E. Baker in the United States district court at Wheeling. Fines totalling $4,500 were assessed which all but several paid while jail terms to a total of eight months were imposed.

Most of the defendants, which included a sprinkling of women, were well dressed, and surprisingly few were foreigners. Cash was only accepted by the clerk and no receipts were offered or requested. Penalties were recommended by the district attorney and in most instances were imposed by the court without question, although on one or two charges conferences were necessary.

Judge Baker while firm in maintaining the dignity of the court, joined occasionally in the smiles provoked by the scenes before him in the trial of the defendants. Just before court closed, however, he found occasion to upbraid a youth who dommed his juggle leaving the court room. The judge leaving the lad, but sternly reminding him that the dignity of the court and the gravity it represented must be maintained.

STATE APPLE CROP SHOWS INCREASE

West Virginia's apple crop especially that in the eastern and northern panhandle, is proving to be much larger than was expected early in the summer. Present estimates indicate that the state's production will be nearly half that of last year's record crop and should conditions remain favorable for the rest of the picking season, it is likely that still further increases may be expected. Other fruits, however, have not shown the seasonal increases that apples have, and with the picking of peaches, pears and grapes practically over, all indications point to production of these crops far below that of last year, and considerably under an average.

The state's apple crop is now estimated at 4,500,000 bushels, as compared with 10,875,000 bushels last year, and the past five-year average production of 7,261,000 bushels. There is a material increase in this month's estimates over that of last month, due to a sharp increase in the estimate for the commercial crop.

Charlie White, Michigan City, Indiana, sold the furniture that had been given his family by charitable organizations. He took the money and bought an automobile. For this he is arrested and sent to jail. Poor Charlie. He is not unlike many of the rest of us silly, struggling, erring, well-meaning, poor-doing fellows. Few of us sell the furniture and go to jail, but most of us, in one way or another, try to get what we want and pay a high price for it.

HEROES, LITTLE SUNG.

So many heroes — almost casual heroes, one might say — are little in the public eye. No one sings songs about them. No one nails up tablets. John Klein, "strong man" in a circus sideshow, is dead. He was petting a child out of the way of a rattlesnake. Doing so, he was bitten and soon died. So much — a line — for John Klein. He gave his life to save the life of another. Complete love — and it never occurred to John Klein to do otherwise.

AS TO WAR AGAIN.

In Europe one hears the quiet remark that Germany will not be likely to go to war with Poland before 1932. That is five years — only a moment in history. It shows that the mind of man has not yet risen above the level of war. How little so-called great diplomats are when they can think only in one way. When diplomats of powerful nations plan war it simply means they are too stupid and too brutal in their thinking to devise a sane and intelligent method of reaching harmony.

our own stupidity and think in terms of war. Gen. Sumnerall, chief of staff of the U. S. army, has the right idea when he says the only way to conduct a war is to draft everything. He says: "Unless the country as a whole accepts the fundamental proposition that the entire United States will prosecute a war with the same spirit of self-sacrifice as the soldiers and sailors, the accountability for

PANHANDLE CROP REPORT FILED

Condition of the 1927 crop in the Panhandle counties of West Virginia show a slight increase over the crop average of the past five years. The corn crop only affected the farmers of this section. Decrease of from two to thirteen percent is shown in this year in the crop as compared with the past five year average.

All other crops were above par except in spots. In Brooke and Ohio counties a slight decrease is shown in the potato production. In Tyler and Wetzel counties the apple crop is only 10 to 15 percent of the normal crop.

With the growing season practically over except for a few late maturing crops, the state's production of the following crops, corn, wheat, oats, rye, tobacco, sorghum and all classes of fruits, are estimated to be somewhat below that of last year due to decreases in area planted for some of the crops and the generally unfavorable season. The estimates for production of potatoes, buckwheat, and hay are somewhat larger than last year but not enough to offset the decrease of other crops, and the state's

Civic Music Association Campaign

One hundred women under the leadership of Mrs. Joseph M. Wells, of Newell, today joined hands in the fourth annual membership campaign of the Civic Music association, the purpose of which is to give the East Liverpool district the best in music.

As a means of meeting the expense involved in contracting for the appearance of recognized artists in a series of concerts during the 1927-28 season, the association seeks to enroll at least 1,000 persons. And the membership fee has been fixed at $5 for adults and $3.50 for juniors.

Wellsville, Newell, Chester, Salineville, Midland and Lisbon, whose people have contributed to the support of the concerts during the last three years, are co-operating in the campaign which will close Saturday night.

The calibre of the programs offered under the auspices of the association has won the congratulations of music lovers through the Ohio Valley. And the praise was warranted, for among the artists who have appeared here were Mischa Elman, violinist; Claudia Muzio, vocalist; Charles Marshall, tenor; Cyrena Van Gordon, soprano; Jacques Gordon, violinist; Phillip Manuel, pianist; Jessie Isabelle Christian, vocalist; Edith Mason, vocalist; Caesar Formichi, tenor; Glenn Drake, vocalist; the Little Symphony orchestra of Chicago and the Denishawn Dancers.

And the 1927-28 program will be no exception to the rule.

The Civic Music association deserves the support of every man, woman and child who is interested in better music. If you have not enrolled, call the O. H. Dawson Music store, headquarters of the campaigners.

The Oyster Ceremony

When the "R" months come, oysters once more appear on menu cards and in meat and fish markets. The oyster season begins as prosaically as that in this country. They do things better across the water, as may be plainly seen from the following London dispatch:

"The annual opening, with quaint ceremonial, of Colchester oyster fishery took place in Brightlingsea, Essex.

"In mid stream the town clerk read the ancient proclamation which declares the fishery open. The mayor made the first haul of the season and the event was celebrated.

"The King's health was drunk and a message sent to His Majesty."

Could anything be jollier? Why don't the advertisers get a little of that spirit into their pleas to the public to eat more oysters? Every oyster we eat this winter is going to taste a lot better because we have heard of the quaint ceremonial in Brightlingsea.

Every Vote Counts

In a city with a rather important local government issue to be decided in the coming election, early registration of voters was surprisingly heavy. If that means that all intelligent voters are aroused to their responsibility as citizens, it's a fine sign.

The tendency in recent year has been a steady dropping off in the exercise of the franchise. Local, state and national elections are sometimes decided by a minority of the eligible voters because the majority fails to vote.

In partial explanation of this slackness on the part of voters, one citizen says, "It is so easy to lose faith in the importance of one's own vote. Ballots are so long, candidates often are not of the first quality, important issues are lost sight of, so that the ordinary citizen develops a 'What's the use?' attitude."

To which one voter, who hasn't lost faith in the ballot, replies by telling a true incident in his town. In the last election for city councilmen the vote was close in a number of instances and in one district, where a dozen resident social workers at one settlement house all voted for a certain man, their votes were sufficient to decide in his favor. If all of them had reversed their votes the first man would have lost and his opponent would have won. As it happened, the first man was honest and able while his opponent was not.

Of course it takes time to make oneself informed about the issues and candidates to be voted on. But it is generally bewailed that we now have more leisure than we know what to do with. Why not use some of it in fitting ourselves to vote intelligently?

A Safe Explosive

It was Nobel, a friend of peace, that invented dynamite. Now a German priest has invented an explosive said to be more powerful than dynamite. But it is said to be far safer—which was his object in working it out.

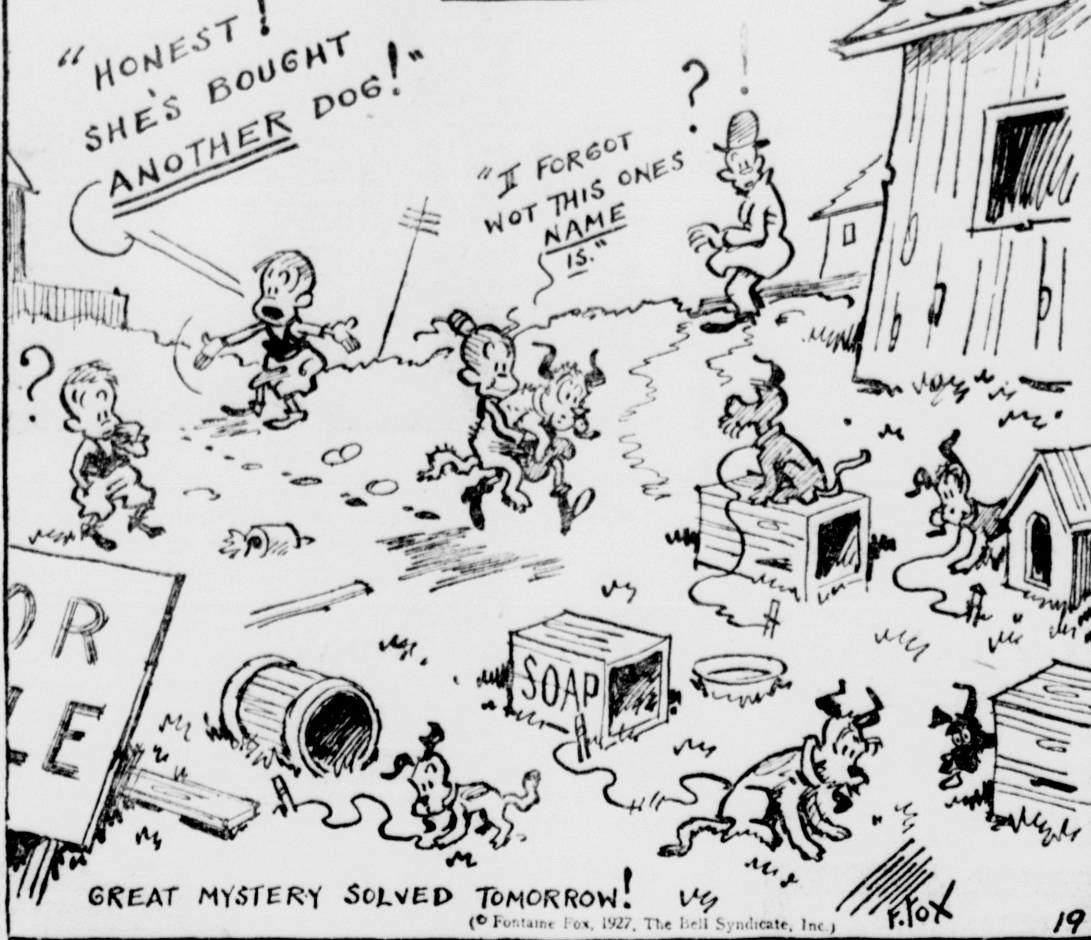

Dynamite and various other explosives have the disadvantage of exploding often when you don't want them to. The new compound, for which the inventor is seeking a patent at Washington, is declared to be proof against spontaneous combustion or accidental detonation. The cartridge can be carried anywhere without danger. Before being used, it has to be dipped in liquid air for 10 minutes. Then, if ignited, it produces a tremendous and devastating explosion. But it remains explosive for only half an hour. Thus a "dud" can always be handled with impunity, merely by waiting a little while.

The chief application of such an explosive is, obviously, to the purposes of peace, though it might be used also for war. It ought to be useful for blasting stone or blowing out stumps.

Tomboy Taylor—

WITHIN THE LAST FEW DAYS TOMBOY TAYLOR HAS BOUGHT $2.41 WORTH OF ASSORTED DOGS AND THE WHOLE NEIGHBORHOOD IS TRYING TO SOLVE THE MYSTERY

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Dog stealing has become a highly specialized form of robbery in the metropolis. Hazards are so slight and profits so great many skilled thieves have deserted other branches of their trade.

It is difficult to convict a dog thief, he resorts to the natural alibi that the stolen dog followed him along the street or becoming lost strayed to his quarters. Judges, however, give them stiff jolts when evidence convinces them of guilt.

Most fine dogs are stolen in shopping centers or at the public markets. The thieves generally work in pairs. One secures attention of the chauffeur while his companion makes away with the animal. In some instances dogs have been chloroformed into a stupor.

They are easily disposed of for cash at numerous dog stores whose proprietors in most instances buy them innocently enough. It is said a pair of clever dog thieves have been able to split more than a thousand a week from their spoils.

Many thieves merely hold the dogs and watch "Lost" columns of newspapers. A genuine dog lover is always willing to offer a handsome reward—and no questions asked—for the return of the pet. The police dog is the most difficult to purloin.

He has been trained to obey one master and outside interference will likely result in a vicious attack. A law is being urged to make dog thievery punishable upon conviction with a minimum 10-year term. In instances it causes anguish almost comparable to kidnapping.

A celebrated actress—and it may or may not be a press yarn—employs a private detective to watch her 57th street apartment to frustrate dog thieves. Her dog has been stolen three times and each time was restored for the $1,000 reward.

It is reported the most promising drama of the year has been built around the life of a midwife. It is considered air tight and actor proof, but it is essential that midwife take the stellar role. Two producers have balked at this requisite. They do not think a midwife would appeal to the ladies. Some one should discover a midwife "fixation."

Running Into Trains.

Railway officials claim that in an overwhelming majority of the accidents at grade crossings, and especially those involving motor vehicles, the drivers of the automobiles, busses, or trucks are wholly to blame. The crossings are invariably marked with precautionary warnings, and yet people persist in attempting to negotiate the tracks without taking any precaution whatever.

When a train hits a motor vehicle at a crossing it is because the driver has undertaken to beat the train to the crossing or has failed to assure himself that there is no train approaching. He has either been reckless or careless. It is true that some grade crossings are so situated that it is difficult or impossible for automobile drivers to see approaching trains, but the drivers, if they have due regard for their own lives and those entrusted to them, can always bring their cars to a full stop and then listen, or otherwise assure themselves that a train is not bearing down upon them, before essaying the crossing. Of course that requires a bit of time—a few seconds or a minute or two—but there are thousands of people now in that other world where time means nothing to them who might still be making and keeping engagements in this world if they had not been foolhardy.

That the railroads have all the better of the argument as to who is primarily to blame in grade crossing motor-vehicle accidents is proved by the fact that in more than 1000 such accidents last year it was clearly established that the automobiles actually ran into the trains. That is to say, the automobiles were not on the crossings and hit by the locomotives, but they smashed into the sides of the locomotives or trains. These accidents involved 225 deaths and 1586 injuries.

Railway officials claim that they are doing all that is humanly possible to safeguard the operation of their lines. They point out that whereas twenty years ago steam railroad operation involved about 10,000 fatal accidents annually, at present that death toll has been reduced to about 7000, notwithstanding the great increase in their volume of business.

This decline in the number of accidental deaths, which has been mostly within the last decade, has been shared by passengers, employees, and other persons, but not equally. The number of killed has been reduced nearly 70 per cent for passengers, almost 58 per cent for employees, and about 16 per cent for the third class.

That this third class—"other persons"—shows so little improvement is explained by the increase in automobile accidents, which are said almost to neutralize the remarkable progress made in reducing the trespasser fatalities, which are about half as many now as they were twenty years ago.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Grade Crossings Grow in Number.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—In one year while the railroads of the United States eliminated 972 grade crossings at a cost of approximately $100,000,000, more than 3000 new grade crossings were constructed under conditions over which the railroads had no control.

There are now about 235,000 grade crossings in the country. To eliminate them all, transportation and traffic authorities agree, is virtually an impossible task from the standpoint of both expense and time required. It is estimated that to do away with all the grade crossings would cost not less than 20 billion dollars. That sum is equal to the preliminary estimated value of all the railroad property in the United States, as made by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is almost equal to the combined resources of the national banks of the country. It is slightly more than the present national debt. It is considerably more than the total expenditures of the Government for half a decade.

And, whatever the comparisons that may be made, 20 billion dollars is a sufficiently large sum to be an insurmountable obstacle so far as grade crossing elimination is concerned.

And the matter of time is an almost equally important consideration. At the recent rate of elimination of 972 in one year more than two centuries would be required to get rid of all the grade crossings in the country, provided no additional ones were constructed. But when it is recalled that during the year when slightly less than a thousand grade crossings were done away with more than three times that number of new grade crossings were established, elimination appears utterly hopeless.

As a task it is comparable with that of the man who was trying to climb out of the abandoned well into which he had fallen and who found that every time he climbed one foot he fell back three feet.

Railroad Officials Willing. Railroad officials are not only willing but anxious that the grade crossing be eliminated as a factor in the annual accident death toll of the United States. As the problem is presented to them, however, the only hope they see is in educating the public to a proper observance of the railroad's right of way.

According to M. O. Lorenz, director of the bureau of statistics of the Interstate Commerce Commission, of the 7090 people killed in connection with the operation of steam railroads in 1926, 2623, or 37 per cent, were classified as trespassers on the right of way, and 2383, or 37.7 per cent, were non-trespassers at grade crossings. Taking the two groups together it may be said that more than 70 per cent of the railroad fatalities occur because people, other than passengers or employees on duty, are on the right of way at the wrong time or place.

Such facts, says Mr. Lorenz, show that for the most part the reduction of the number of accidental deaths in railway operation is a problem that calls for the cooperation of the public and is not merely a question of care in operating the railways.

"We, as a people," he continues, "have the capacity to produce more food, clothes, and other necessities of life than we need and are spending untold billions of dollars a year for luxuries. Such a people can afford to make its highways as safe as engineers think they should be made. The problem is to cause the money to flow in the right direction. This is a state and local problem more than a Federal one. But if the recapture of excess earnings under Section 15a of the Transportation Act should ever yield large sums it might be well to distribute the money to the railways for crossing protection.

There were at the close of 1926, 27,847 protected and 266,433 unprotected highway grade crossings with steam railroads. It seems hopeless to make them all fool-proof, but doubtless there are thousands of dangerous crossings which would be eliminated or more adequately protected next year if the funds were available. Here is a magnificent enterprise which requires the cooperation of the railroads, the newspapers, the school teacher, the legislator, the inventor, and the rest of the public."

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—After all, what difference does it make whether our next president is a dry or a wet?

The country's dry by constitution and by act of congress. The president's sworn to uphold the one and enforce the other, whatever his personal ideas may be. You hear this proposition advanced quite frequently.

But a great many people seem to think it does make a decided difference whether the next president is wet or dry.

Why?

PROBABLY the best answer to our question is to be found in the views of Anti-Saloon League workers in Washington.

Before his death, Wayne B. Wheeler had outlined for the league plans intended to guarantee a bone-dry president for the 1929 term. He evidently thought it mattered. F. Scott McBride, Mr. Wheeler's successor, at least "pro tem," is overlooking no bet to see that the Wheeler program is carried out to the last detail. He thinks it matters, too.

Having found out how the dries feel about it, we can easily determine how the wets must feel, by simply turning the dries' reasoning exactly around.

SUPPOSE we do have a president, who, though wet in his individual sympathies, nevertheless means to enforce the law. He may go through the motions, but it isn't to be expected that he'll have much heart in them.

His secretary of the treasury, at the head of all federal enforcement machinery, and his attorney general in charge of all prosecutions under the prohibition act, presumably will be officials like their chief. Besides, as we proceed downward from the White House, in the direction of the departments, we shall find that a little additional enthusiasm has oozed out.

Treasury and justice departmental underlings—assistants, field agents, district attorneys, marshals and the like—will sense their superiors' indifference and their activities will be perfunctory at best—not to mention out-and-out "black sheep."

All these officials are presidential appointees.

So are the federal judges of the district and circuit courts, of whom many, out of considerably more than 100 on the bench, are named by every president.

A magistrate who regards violations of a certain law with a lenient eye is unlikely to deal out severe sentences under it, in the dries' estimation, and doubtless without conscious bias, he can readily construe the rules of evidence so as to make convictions under it difficult.

In all probability, too, the next president will have several appointments to make to the federal supreme court. The supreme court interprets the law and its interpretations are about as important as the law itself.

The present supreme justices' rulings have been, in the main satisfactory, but, of the present nine justices, not one but will be more than 60 years old before the next presidential term ends. Six will be more than 70, three will be more than 75, and Justice Holmes, if he lives, will be past 90.

It's quite possible, the dries note, that the next president will put a majority of his own selection on the federal supreme bench.

THE dries don't assert that a wet president's election would mean an immediately wet country. They do believe four years of him would gravely undermine the dry law's enforcement, if not the law itself.

Put this argument in reverse, and you have the wets'.

BOWDLER MAY ESCAPE TRIAL IN U. S. COURT

Attorney, in Prison, is Indicted for Conspiracy.

PARTNER NAMED

Other Defendants Will Face Jury on October 24.

A. E. Bowdler, former East Liverpool attorney, and his business associate, Gordon D. Ulyatt, now inmates of the West Virginia penitentiary, may escape trial on three conspiracy indictments in the United States district court, according to a dispatch today from Wheeling.

The other defendants will be required to appear for trial on Monday, October 24, according to William C. Howard, assistant district attorney. "I cannot say for certain that Bowdler and Ulyatt are to be tried, but the others named in the indictments will either be tried or will plead guilty," said Howard.

Bowdler and Ulyatt are now serving sentences of five years each in the Mountaineer prison, having been convicted in Ohio county intermediate court on charges of violating the West Virginia securities act, in connection with the operation of the Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company.

Judge W. E. Baker said in court yesterday that the contention that Bowdler and Ulyatt are wards of the state and cannot be tried in federal court, is not well founded, and cited similar instances where federal courts had taken prisoners from state prisons and arraigned them for trial. The defendants named with Bowdler and Ulyatt in the three indictments are Parker J. MacWilliams, Mere Heubel, Friend Cox, J. V. Bales, George Molling, J. J. Beater, Edward Johns, L. Z. Snyder and H. H. Baker. Conspiracy to use the mails to defraud is the charge. The charge is based upon the operations of the Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company and the Belmont Securities company. Seventy-one government witnesses have been summoned. Among them are A. L. Draper, government accountant, who audited the books of the two concerns, and B. L. Fisher, postal inspector, who led the investigation.

FALL SINCLAIR CASE UNDER WAY

Defense Counsel "Gives Facts" to Non-reading Jurors.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The onus of the Continental Trading company oil deal, out of which Ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall is alleged to have received $230,500, was placed upon H. M. Blackmer, former chairman of the board of the Midwest Refining company, by Defense Attorney Martin W. Littleton today, as the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial warmed up.

Blackmer has been in Europe for four years avoiding appearance in the oil trials, and since this case began has sent an attorney into court to defy the government's right to subpoena him.

Harry F. Sinclair, Littleton told the jury, had no part in the forming of the Continental Trading company, which, he inferred, consisted solely of Blackmer. Rather, Sinclair came to the Continental to purchase oil for his own concerns.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Court opened today in the Fall-Sinclair criminal conspiracy trial with Martin W. Littleton, defense attorney, holding the floor and "giving all the facts" to the mixed jury which had been selected specifically because they hadn't read about the case in the newspapers.

Littleton admitted to the non-reading jurors that his harangue would be dull and uninteresting, but he pointed out it was all-essential they have a "thorough background" of the case in mind.

He was tracing step by step, from the defense angle, the making of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve lease which the government contends was fraudulently contracted between former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, the millionaire oil operator. Many witnesses were waiting to take the stand, the most prominent among them being Assistant Secretary of Interior E. C. Finney, who urged Fall not to lease the oil reserves to any one.

PRISONER CUTS SHERIFF IN CLASH

ASHTABULA, Oct. 19.—Sheriff Frank Sheldon was in a hospital here today suffering from knife wounds in his right forearm inflicted by a prisoner in the county jail last night.

According to witnesses, the sheriff had entered the cell of James Barry, 45, who is awaiting trial on a charge of robbing Pullman railroad cars. Barry attacked the sheriff, according to deputies, and Sheldon knocked him down twice. During the scuffle Barry drew a large pocket knife and stabbed the sheriff in the arm. Guards were unable to explain where he had obtained the knife.

SIX OHIO STEEL PLANTS TO MERGE

NEWLYWEDS SPURN DAD'S AID

Mr. and Mrs. Norvell Tyrell.

The fact that Governor Fred W. Green, of Michigan, wants to turn over his salary checks—$10,000 a year—to Mr. and Mrs. Norvell Tyrell, newlyweds, means nothing to them. They won't accept help. Mrs. Tyrell is Governor Green's daughter. She and her husband are paying for a $3,000 home out of the husband's salary as a factory worker in Ionia, Mich. "We are getting along on what we earn, and we will continue that way," they say. The governor would like to help them but he admires their spirit. The couple's romance started at Michigan State College and they eloped last January.

TRAINS WRECK AUTOS, KILLING SEVEN PERSONS

Five Others Injured in Grade Crossing Accidents.

OHIOANS VICTIMS

Crashes Occur as Children are on Way From School.

CAMBRIDGE, O., Oct. 19.—Plans were being made here today for funerals for five persons who were killed last night when a Pennsylvania passenger train crashed into an automobile at Byesville, five miles south of here.

It is probably that a joint funeral services will be held for Russell Cox, 35, cashier of Byesville State bank, and four children, the other victims. Those killed, besides Cox, were Ralph Cox, 7, his son; William Gooden, 8; Ralph Kostelenki, 7, and Robert Breiden, 7.

Cox had gone to the Byesville school in his car to bring his little son home and picked up the other children and schoolmates of the Cox child. Rain on the windshield of his car is believed to have caused him to fail to see the approaching train at the open crossing, and the car was struck squarely in the middle.

Stephen Gould, 9, the only occupant of the car who was not killed, was in a critical condition in a hospital today, but was believed to have a chance of recovery.

Car Stalls at Crossing. CONNEAUT, O., Oct. 19.—Two children were killed and their mother and three other children seriously injured in a grade crossing crash here yesterday.

The dead: Betty Norton, 7, and Bobby Norton, 8. The injured: Mrs. Chester Norton, 32; Fred, 11; Jennie, 5, and Donald, 3.

The mother was bringing her children home from school when the automobile she was driving apparently stalled at the Chestnut street railroad crossing. A New York Central passenger train struck the machine before its occupants had a chance to escape.

Two of the children were run over and killed instantly, but the others were thrown clear and, though seriously injured, are expected to recover. Mrs. Norton has not yet been able to tell just how the accident happened.

He played quarterback on a practice eleven.

PARIS AWAITS MISS RUTH ELDER

PARIS, Oct. 19.—This city thrilled with expectancy today anticipating the arrival of Miss Ruth Elder and Captain George Haldeman who are at present on board the Portuguese mail steamer Lima bound for Lisbon.

Of course, the daring girl-flyer whose personality charmed her hosts at Horta, will not arrive here for more than a week, but Paris is already acquainted with Ruth through news dispatches and is anxious to pay homage to her.

Miss Elder originally set out for Paris in a plane, and according to latest information, she will arrive in one—although not the same one in which she started out. But Paris looks upon her as an aviatrix and will receive her as one.

70 BANDITS KILLED IN NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—American marines again have inflicted heavy casualties on bandits in Nicaragua.

The navy was advised today that about 70 brigands were killed or wounded in a fight with marines and native constabulary who were searching for Lieutenant E. A. Thomas, 41, Richmond, Indiana, and Sergeant Frank E. Dowdell, of Cambridge, Illinois, marine aviators. No "Marines" were killed. Four native guardsmen fell.

Thomas and Dowdell were last seen running from their airplane after it had crashed to the ground and caught fire.

FLYER STINSON, WIFE AND PALS REPORTED SAFE

Airplane Designer Forced Down Near Sherborn, Mass.

NO ONE INJURED

Detroit Party Disappeared During Storm Over New England.

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Eddie Stinson, Detroit airplane designer, reported missing with his wife and four companions in a Stinson-Detroit plane, is safe. The flyers, forced down by fog and rain on a farm near Sherborn, Mass., 30 miles from this city, motored to Boston early today.

No one in the plane was hurt. Stinson and his wife were accompanied by Baron Ravens Barnekow, a German aviator; J. T. Whittaker, Stinson's mechanic; Philip Ashby and Fred Koehler.

The flyers, reported missing in the rain storm over New England, had been hunted throughout the night by police and airport officials throughout this section.

Flares Used as Beacon. The party disappeared after leaving Hartford, Conn., at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A plane was later reported over two Connecticut towns, and later a plane was heard by police over Natick, just west of Boston. This led local aviation men to believe Stinson had lost his way and might have been forced down.

State police at Framingham, west of Natick, sent out auto scouts to hunt traces of the missing plane and occupants. The police at the same time burned red lights at their barracks, in the hope of guiding Stinson. At Boston airport flares were used as a beacon for Stinson, and six planes had been made ready to begin a search at daybreak.

Stinson designed the "American Girl," the "Fride of Detroit" and many other planes.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The industrial stocks and the pool specialties moved forward briskly at the beginning of trading today, in response to an aggressive buying wave, principally of professional origin. First sales on specialties ranged from 1,000 to 10,000 shares, buying of that quantity of Radio Corporation having been credited to a "new pool" in the stock, with appropriate advertising.

Overnight buying orders were naturally looked for as the result of Tuesday's sharp closing rally and the spread of bullish sentiment following President Coolidge's rosy survey of current and prospective business conditions. Specialty stocks, which led the movement to "new highs" in the first part of the week, were given a good boost and stocks of the mercantile companies, the utilities and a few of the steel and motors reached a slightly higher level of prices. Then profit-taking set in, and the list moved irregularly downward.

Selling pressure increased in the second hour, and prices of the speculative favorites moved off sharply from the peaks of the first period. There was nothing to indicate and decided change either in the business outlook or in the sponsorship of the stock market. Professional traders supplied the high-priced industrials quite freely and stocks moved downward in consequence.

PARTIES SILENT IN BUTLER DEMAND

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The demand of Senator William E. Borah, since seconded by Nicholas Murray Butler, that both major parties and all presidential candidates go upon record on the question of prohibition, apparently failed to create much impression either upon Republican or Democratic leaders in the capital.

The only endorsement came from wet leaders, who have been urging prohibition as a national issue ever since their respective states elected them to office on wet platforms. Otherwise, there appeared to be a strong sentiment in both parties to write general law enforcement planks into their 1928 platforms and then to forget the subject.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Mexican bandits are in possession of the camps of the American-owned Amajac mines in Ixtlan, state of Mayrit, Mexico, the state department was informed today by American Consul William P. Blocker at Mazatlan.

On October 14, the payroll and mail pouch of the mines was stolen and four soldiers of a small guard were killed by bandits.

Blocker has been advised from Mexico City that adequate military protection will be sent to the mines.

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN" "MONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

A great office building is a very silent and lonely place after working hours.

It seems to be shut off from all the rest of the world—a tower of ivory in an enchanted forest.

The stillness in the Nye-Naylor building was so thick that it could be cut with a knife that night when Sally Jerome stepped out of the elevator at the top floor.

She started along the corridor, and her light feet made no sound on the marble floor.

Through the open door of John Nye's office she could see his dark head bent over some papers on his desk. But instead of turning in, she unlocked the door of Mr. Peevey's room and stepped inside.

On a shelf above his desk was his plate and a box of paper napkins. Sally took down the plate and laid the two sandwiches she had brought upon it, covering them with a clean paper napkin. Then she filled a glass with water from the cooler, and set it with the plate upon Mr. Peevey's Japanese tray.

John Nye did not raise his head as she walked into his office, carrying it in her hands. She laid it on his desk, showing it gently towards him across the polished mahogany top.

"What's this?" he asked again, and looked up at her with startled eyes. Sally tried to answer him, but the words tangled themselves up in her throat. She could feel her face flame and her hands began to shake, and grow ice cold.

"Sandwiches!" she managed to blurt out at last, and then after another moment, "For you. You missed your dinner!" She wished with all her soul that the velvet-covered floor would open and swallow her quietly up, in that moment.

"I see," John answered in his deep, quiet voice.

And he seemed to see, too, that she was greatly embarrassed, for he stopped looking at her and picked up one of the sandwiches.

He bit into it. "Very good sandwich!" he said with appreciation.

"And very nice of you to bring it to me. You were right—I was hungry."

Then he deliberately carried Mr. Peevey's lacquered tray over to the window sill and set it there. He finished his meal, standing there with his back to the room.

By the time he turned around, Sally was herself once more.

She was busily typing some letters that he had laid upon her desk, and above her head a green-shaded hanging lamp made a rich shower of brightness all around her. That brightness lay like sunshine on the glossy waves of her hair, the tender curve of her cheek, and the beautiful sweep of her dark lashes.

She did not look up, and so she did not see that John's eyes studied her for a long time. He lighted a cigarette and sat down in his chair, leaning back comfortably and watching her with a smile.

"Thanks for my dinner," he said, not speaking until she looked up at him with those deep, gay eyes of hers.

Sally shrugged her shoulders. "I hated to bring you those common, dried-up drug store sandwiches," she told him. "I wish I'd had some baked ham of my own. I bake it with brown sugar and mustard, all over it and cloves stuck into it."

He glanced over at the firm little brown hands that were locked over the edge of the typewriter. Clever, capable hands, they were. Beautiful hands, in spite of their roughness.

"You're the best typist who ever worked for me," he said with conviction. "Don't tell me you're a good cook besides."

Sally knew she was one. She knew it just as well as she knew that her name was Sally Jerome. But all she said was:

"I ought to be a good cook. I've been doing the cooking at home for a long time."

Then she stopped and her face went blank. She remembered, suddenly, that Millie had taken all the credit for the only meal John Nye ever had in his house.

The worst of it was that he remembered it, too.

"Who got the supper the night I was at your house?" he asked, bluntly.

And Sally, blushing like a poppy, told a white lie in her loyalty to Millie. Her everlasting and senseless loyalty to her.

"Millie helped me," said she, and slipped a white sheet of paper under the rail of her typewriter.

But John Nye knew!

For several moments there was silence in the big office at the very top of the tall Nye-Naylor building, broken only by the woodpecker tapping of Sally's fingers on the typewriter keys.

Then John Nye spoke again. "I told you I was taking on a new sales man in the morning, didn't I?" he asked. "And it looks as if I'm going to be able to use some extra help here in the office. So when old Hank Peevey lets you go, just remember that there's a job waiting for you over here, will you?"

"If he lets me go—why, what do you mean?" faltered Sally, open-mouthed with amazement.

John looked nonplussed. "Perhaps I shouldn't have said anything. But he told me the other day that he's thinking of shutting up shop very soon. He's pretty well along, you know, and he doesn't have to keep busy any more. I imagine he kept that office open more to take up his time than for any other reason."

Sally stared at him in sick amazement. Why, it was like knocking the very earth from under her feet to tell her that Mr. Peevey was closing up his funny old office! And she still owed him almost a hundred dollars! What would she do about that? Where would she go?

"I can't come here to work, that's certain," she said to herself, her solemn gaze on John Nye's face. "I never could stand watching him and Millie all day. I'd go and wash dishes in a restaurant first!"

And then the thought of Aunt Emily's wayside inn came to her. . . .

Yes, she could go to Aunt Emily if nothing else turned up. She could take a chance with Aunt Emily.

The telephone on her desk rang. It sounded as loud and alarming as a fire bell in the silence.

She picked up the receiver. "This is Mr. Nye's office," she said evenly, in a cool business voice.

"You, Sally?" Ted Sloan answered her. "Say, I'm up in your house. Your mother's having a fit about something and wants you to come right home. I'll be right down in the boat to get you."

"I've got to go home," Sally told John Nye. "Ted Sloan's coming down for me. But I'll keep right on working till he gets here. I was supposed to get supper tonight for my mother and father, and I reckon they're getting pretty hungry."

It was 8 o'clock. The bells of some downtown church were chiming the hour as she spoke, their voices clear and silvery on the night air.

"What's wrong with Mother?" she asked Ted when they were in his shivering, jumping automobile, speeding towards home.

"How do I know? Don't ask me riddles, Sally. I'm in low gear to-night," he said, just missing a street car. "All I know is that I ran up to your back door to see if you were washing dishes and she was sitting there, crying her eyes out. She told me to get you right away."

"Poor Mother! She shouldn't have tried to get supper. She always gets light-headed and dizzy when she does any work," she answered, her voice full of concern and tenderness. "I suppose my father wanted something hot and she stood over the cook stove too long. Step on the gas, Teddy."

He stepped on it. He loved speed. He should have been an ambulance chaser!

By some miracle they were not arrested on the way home.

Sally started up the dark back steps of the flat building while he put his little car into the garage.

Before she reached the top he called to her in a hushed voice:

"Wait a minute, Baby!"

She waited, wondering what he wanted.

Up through the warm heavy darkness he came to her.

Perhaps it was because she was wistful and quiet after her evening with John Nye. Perhaps it was because the night laid its ancient spell of darkness and star-shine upon young Ted Sloan.

But anyway, when he reached her he put his arms around her and kissed her—twice, very quickly—before she could stop him.

"Oh, Sally, be a sport and marry me!" he said, and even if his words were slang, his voice was strained with longing. "Sally, I hate to think of you shut up in an office, late at night, with John Nye—"

"John Nye!" repeated Sally, with great scorn, rubbing her lips with her handkerchief under cover of the darkness. "Why, I'm as safe with John Nye as I'd be with Beas! Why, he's crazy-cracked over Millie! He's as good as married to her! In another six months I'll bet you money that he's my brother-in-law!"

Also under cover of darkness, young Mr. Sloan shook his head unbelievably. . . . He had looked 'em all over, so he told himself. And no guy in his right senses would even see Millie when a hot looker like Sally was around!"

"And besides, how could I marry you? How could I marry ANYBODY, even if I wanted to?" she wanted to know, and her voice was gentle. She knew just how Ted felt—and she was sorry for him. It was no fun to be in love with someone who didn't care a bit for you. It hurt. Didn't she know?

"Why couldn't you get married?" Ted asked doggedly, as they walked across the upper porch, past the old painted rocker and the geranium boxes and the milk bottle box.

"Well, because of Mother. Who'd look after her?" asked Sally.

"Your father's here now," Ted answered her, as he bent over to fit the key into the lock on the kitchen door. "Maybe he'll stick around and do his duty, for a change."

"Stop! Don't you say another word about my father!" Sally's breast was rising in quick anger. "You just keep your thoughts about my family to yourself, Ted Sloan!"

She banged the door shut in his face as she vanished into the kitchen.

And he went down stairs, promising himself passionately, as he had promised himself the same thing scores of times before, that he was through with that spit-fire forever and ever—that he would forget that she was on the face of the earth from then on!

But, of course, he would do no such thing.

And right down at the bottom of his soul he knew it.

Cascara is Your Doctor's Choice

When physicians pronounce cascara the PERFECT laxative—why experiment with things that lash the system into action? Cascara, you know, is the bark of a tree. A natural and normal stimulus to the bowels.

The Indians, who used to chew this bark, had no word in their language that meant "constipation!"

Perfect regularity is possible today, and to all of us. We have cascara in ideal form; the very delightful-tasting candy cascaret gives us pure cascara. It has helped at least a million people to habitual regularity. Millions of others, unfortunately, have stuck to stronger things and acquired only the laxative habit.

Your first cascaret will demonstrate how THOROUGH this gentle laxative is, after all. Your next surprise will be the length of time before you need another. Eventually, you'll see that cascaring tends to make the bowels move thereafter of their own accord!

A modern drugstore must stock many laxatives, but for your own good the druggist would rather have you ask for the inexpensive little box of cascarets than anything else.

REFORMATORY SENTENCES IN WELLSVILLE ROBBERY

JUDGE LONES SENDS TWO LADS TO MANSFIELD

Arthur Clutter and Robert Stacey Face Imprisonment.

ONE CONVICTED

Clutter Pleaded Guilty in Householder Store Burglary.

Arthur Clutter and Robert Stacey, youths indicted by the last grand jury in the robbery of the O. M. Householder grocery store, Eighteenth street and Oak avenue, Wellsville, yesterday afternoon were sentenced to serve from two to 15 years in the Ohio reformatory at Mansfield, by Judge W. F. Lones in common pleas court.

Clutter, when arraigned following the indictments, pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary.

Stacey, who pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Lones, went on trial Monday in common pleas court and was convicted by a jury of an attempt to break and enter, after testimony of a dozen witnesses was heard.

Clutter and Stacey will be taken to Mansfield during the latter part of the week, it was indicated today.

SOLONS TABLE 50-YEAR GRANT

Hear Mayor's Reasons for Vetoing Power Co. Bill.

Declaring, among other things, that Wellsville should have the right to require the power company to run underground conduits, if necessary; that the city should have some say in the matter if the franchise-holding company should ever attempt to dispose of its rights, and characterizing the 50-year term clause as objectionable, Mayor V. L. Fogo last night submitted six separate reasons to council for vetoing the ordinance.

Dora can't come!

Today, and every day, a lot of women count their time to suffer. As regularly as the months come 'round, comes pain that is borne in silence. 'It's Nature,' women say. But it isn't!

Women who have always had the hardest time, have no pain at all from the day they discover Midol.

Midol is the special preparation of specialists, and is not a narcotic. It does nothing to the menstrual process. It does stop the pain—in five to seven minutes! So it is only common sense to use it. And it costs just fifty cents, at any drugstore in tiny carrying case of aluminum.

toing the ordinance extending a franchise to the Ohio Power company. With no public discussion of the matter at all, council, with Peters and Reil starting the motion, voted to table both the ordinance and the chief executive's veto for a period of two weeks during which time solons will consider possible steps.

Solons held two caucus sessions prior to opening their regular meeting. The mayor's message to council, in which he cites his veto reasons, follows:

"I am herewith returning to your honorable body an ordinance entitled, 'An ordinance granting to the Ohio Power company, its successors and assigns, the rights, privileges, permission, franchise and authority to acquire, construct, maintain and operate in, on, above, under, across and along the streets, thoroughfares, alleys, bridges and public places of the city of Wellsville, lines for the distribution of electric energy to said city of Wellsville and the inhabitants thereof for light, power and other purposes, subject to the terms and conditions of said ordinance, which was passed by you on third and final reading on the fourth of October, 1927, with my disapproval of same for the following reasons:

"Under section 1, the city should have the right, if at some future time they deem it necessary, to require the Ohio Power company to place its wires and conduits under ground.

"Under Section 2, the city council should be specifically named as the authority to designate where poles and conduits of said company shall be placed.

"Section 6 gives the said company permission to sell such franchise which, in my judgment, is not the right thing to do as the city council should have some say as to what disposition is made of franchises granted by them.

"Under such a franchise the city should have the right, if they so desire, to attach fire alarm boxes, police call boxes, wires for traffic light control and all wires for city uses to the poles of said company.

"Under such a franchise specific provisions should be made for the painting of all poles belonging to or used by said company, that when such painting is ordered by the city council it shall be done in the time specified by said city council.

"Section 7 is granting to said company such permission for a period of 50 years. There is absolutely no benefit to be derived by the city in making such a grant. This section on the basis of 50 years is the most objectionable and in my judgment I do not deem it proper for the city to make a grant for such a duration of years to any company for such purposes.

"For the above reasons I do hereby veto said Ohio Power company ordinance.

"Respectfully,
"WALLACE L. FOGO, Mayor."

Coach Earl Klink's Orange and Black Squad Preparing for Tough Battle Here Saturday.

Mingo Junction, next on the football schedule of Wellsville's scholastic eleven, is expected to give the Orange and Black one of the toughest battles of the year, if the Jefferson countians produce the brand of football that has characterized their previous efforts against the local gridladders.

The Mingo Junction contest will be played at Nicholson Field next Saturday afternoon.

Coach Earl S. Klink's eleven has hung up two consecutive victories following its early season defeat by Chester and will extend every effort to make it three in a row against the Mingo outfit.

The locals had a comparatively easy afternoon at Leetonia and the squad as a result, is in first class condition for the Saturday battle.

Mingo can nearly always be depended upon to produce a top notch high school squad and has given even the local school's strongest teams plenty of trouble in past seasons.

Acid Scalp

How many carefully coiffured heads can stand the test of eyes only inches away, and reveal not a speck of sand? How many women can warm to the dance, and know their hair will have no taint for the partner who holds them close?

No one can be sure who has acid scalp.

If you ever suspect this acid condition of the scalp, it is time for Danderine. This scientific preparation will neutralize any acidity, and dissolve all dandruff if there is any. And it always gives the hair itself a lovely softness and sheen. It will wave better, hold a wave longer, and behave better all the time if you just occasionally apply a few drops of Danderine. Try it! Every drug store has this perfect conditioner of the scalp and hair, and a thirty-five cent bottle lasts for weeks.

Do You Clean House Systematically?

Housecleaning need not be the bugbear it has long been regarded in many households.

If the work is carefully planned, if the kind of furnishings that are easy to keep clean are chosen and handled in the right way, and if provision is made for keeping all the dirt possible out of the house, there will be no need for the upheavals that result in discomfort to the entire household.

How to make this task simpler and easier is discussed in a booklet which this bureau has for distribution. Any reader can secure a copy of this government publication by filling out and mailing the coupon below, enclosing four cents in stamps for return postage and handling.

Cooking School Will Equip Modern Kitchen

Review-Tribune Lecturer Will Arrive Here Monday for Opening of Classes in Eagles' Auditorium on Tuesday.

Local department stores and electrical dealers have been called upon to equip the modern kitchen installed in the Eagles' auditorium, Broadway, for the cooking school presented next week by the Review-Tribune. The school opens Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and continues through Friday afternoon, but a completely equipped kitchen will be ready by Monday for the approval of Mrs. Mary Brown-Lewers, famous food lecturer who will direct the school. Not only are certain pieces of modern kitchen equipment necessary to simple home cookery, Mrs. Lewers believes, but there are many large and small devices new to most housekeepers which this lecture uses in her kitchen and with which she prepares the dishes at the cooking school. The kitchen at the Eagles' auditorium will be equipped with novel as well as useful new appliances, and the lecturer will discuss such equipment as a part of her demonstration lectures.

The lectures are planned to cover the most important phase of kitchen activity, menu planning, cookery, fancy cookery, entertaining with special emphasis on new methods of food preparation. There will be new dishes cooked every day of the school and the recipes for these dishes as well as for many other good ones will be distributed at each lesson.

"Many women feel that the old way was good enough for their mothers, and therefore good enough for them," Mrs. Lewers said when discussing the plans for the Eagles' auditorium kitchen. "But fashions have changed in the home as well as in the commercial and industrial world. Mother had to bake her bread by a long, slow process because it was the only way she knew to bake bread, and in those days there were no good public bakeries. She had to spend a large part of every day in the kitchen because the coal range was slow, her tools were clumsy, and her kitchen equipment was made before people had heard the word 'efficiency.' A few well chosen, simple, modern devices, the new refrigerators and ranges and the fine food products on the market today have cut women's kitchen work in half. But she must learn to choose the good from the bad in these appliances and foods."

Mrs. Lewers will tell her audience how to equip their kitchens. She invites all of the women of the East Liverpool district to bring their questions on new equipment—how to choose and use it and how to care for it—with them to the lectures. She also invites questions on cookery and other phases of home-making.

Mrs. Lewers' experience as a practical home maker, as a teacher and lecturer before schools and many women's organizations has proved that women all over the country are keenly awake to the advantages of scientific housekeeping theories which can be adapted to their own homemaking problems.

The demonstration will begin at 2 o'clock each day but the doors of the Eagles' auditorium will be open at 1 o'clock to accommodate the crowds which promise to be there. Some of the women's clubs and societies will attend in groups and from the number of telephone calls and letters which are pouring into the Review-Tribune office, the audience will be a capacity crowd for each day of the school. Women are urged to bring note books and pencils to jot down pointers from the lectures for shopping and cookery ideas will be given every day. The recipes of the dishes prepared as well as other recipes will be in printed form and distributed during the lectures.

Sure Way to Stop Night Coughing

A Prescription That Ends Night Coughs in 15 Minutes.

Persistent night coughing is usually due to causes which cough syrups and patent medicine do not touch. A remarkable prescription known as Thovine, working on an entirely different principle, goes direct to the cause, and is guaranteed to stop the stubbornest cough within 15 minutes. One swallow is all that's needed. It is safe for children. Equally good for sore throat, for which purpose it is far superior to gargles. Ask for Thovine 35c, 60c, and $1.00. At all druggists.

CHICAGO STOCK SCORES AGAIN

"How Women Ruin Men" Ceramic Bill Tonight.

The Chicago Stock company pleased two more large audiences at the Ceramic theatre yesterday when they presented for the first time here the comedy drama, "Sinner," which had a long run last year in New York at the Klaw theatre. In direct contrast to the opening play the production yesterday was a handsomely staged and costumed and is the story of a glorious girl who sowed her oats in a wild manner and earned for herself the nickname, "Sinner." She had many queer ideas about marriage but the end of the play sees happiness for every character and "Sinner" started on the road to matrimony.

Another large audience was present this afternoon when the players presented Avery Hopwood's new farce, "How Women Ruin Men," the plot of the play, or rather farce, is based on the troubles of a young married man with an all too flirtatious wife who asks lifelong friend to take said wife out and attempt to find out how far she would go. All of which leads to subsequent happenings that furnish two hours and a half of excellent amusement.

Mr. Hopwood is the author of "Getting Gertie's Garter," "The Harem," "Up in Mabel's Room," and "The Bat" and in his entire career has never written a failure. Today's play "How Women Ruin Men" ran nine months at the Ritz theatre.

Tomorrow matinee and night and also Saturday matinee, the company will present that mystery thriller, "The Cat and The Canary," and leading from the already large advance sale a capacity house will be on hand to witness this famous drama.

Friday afternoon and evening, "The Patsy" will be offered. This pleasing comedy is from the pen of Harry Conner's, who contributed "A Pleasure" to the stage last year.

The closing production of the week Saturday evening will be another Hopwood farce, "Naughty Cinderella," which is the Frisky, French farce that Irene Bordoni starred in last year.

Seats are now on sale for all evening productions. At the matinee which are given daily, the first come, first served policy prevails.

Year's "Miracle Men" Of Grid To Match Wits At Syracuse

ELEVENS OF BEZDEK AND ANDREAS CLASH

Penn State Pilot, and Syracuse Coach Account for Last Week's Two Big Upsets; Saturday Tilt May be Air Battle.

By Les Conklin.
NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Football teams coached by the "two miracle men of the east" will clash next Saturday at Syracuse, N. Y., when the Salt Lake City eleven entertains Penn State's Nittany Livns.

Hugo Bezdek, Penn State pilot, and Lew Andreas, the Syracuse coach, accounted for last week's two outstanding upsets in eastern football by guiding their charges to victory over Pennsylvania and Georgetown, respectively. Saturday's game will be a battle of wits between a veteran mentor and a kid coach. Bezdek, a former big league baseball manager, has been developing football teams for many years while Andreas, only a few years out of college, has led his team to four straight victories in his first season as head coach.

Penn State Confident.
The game probably will be an aerial battle, as both teams employ the pass extensively. Captain Johnny Ropke of Penn State, whose daring toss of a fifty-yard pass from behind his own goal line took the starch out of Penn, is confident that the Pennsylvania Dutchmen will cross the Syracuse goal line for the first time in history. Both teams got hard workouts in the rain yesterday. Rain has handicapped eastern teams all week, but the Cornell squad fooled Jupiter Pluvius yesterday by working out in the baseball cage. Gil Dobbie fears Princeton's forward passes and is attempting to correct his team's weakness against this method of attack.

Injuries have forced the Penn coaches to revise their backfield for the Chicago game. The present combination consists of Ratowsky at quarter, Wascoloni at full, and Murphy and Forbes at the halves.

Mule, Bulldog Battle.
A corps of 1,250 cadets will go to New Haven on Saturday when the Army mule and the Yale bulldog come to grips. Coach Biff Jones of the Army is concentrating on his second string ball carriers. Yale has uncovered a new star in Johnny Garvey who made two touchdowns against the scrubs. The Elis will hold their final hard practice of the week today.

Guarnaccia, Harvard star, has discarded his crutches but probably will be unable to play against Dartmouth. Although the big green team has averaged 44 points a game this season, it is getting its first tough opponent in Harvard and is far from overconfident.

Duke Shaugnessy, Colgate star, is back in uniform and will play against Wabash.

Give Us Back Our Goal Posts
Is Wail of Navy Bill Ingram

They've taken our goal posts away from us. And we want them back. Even this early in the season, football fans and players are raising a mighty howl about their beloved goal posts. And they have a right to.

When the rule makers in their august wisdom moved the goal posts up rights and cross-bar from the end of the gridiron to ten yards back, they took something out of football which cannot be replaced.

Something to Defend.
The goalposts give the teams something tangible to defend. There was something back of them more dear than just a last whitewashed strip of turf.

Gossip From Buckeye Grids
Wittenberg Loses Guard.
SPRINGFIELD—Harold Christler, Wapakoneta guard, who has been starring with Wittenberg this season, will be unavailable when the Lutherans clash with Ohio at Athens Saturday. He stepped on a rusty nail and has been given anti-tetanus serum.

Wesleyan Prospects Brighter.
DELAWARE—With Tilton and Abbey, veteran tackles who have been laid out by injuries, back in the lineup, Wesleyan's prospects are the brightest of the season today. The Bishops will send their full strength against the Denison team at Granville Saturday, Coach Gauthier says.

Boles Uses Case Plays.
WOOSTER—Coach L. C. Boles today was giving the Wooster squad special drill against the freshmen, using Case offensive plays, in preparation for the homecoming game with Case Saturday. Wooster may enter the game without the services of Young and Sitar, but Post, who has been out with an injured knee, probably will be available.

Kenyon Primes for Reserve.
KENYON—The Kenyon squad today was hard at work in preparation for the Saturday clash with Western Reserve. Despite the rubbing the team received at Rochester, no serious injuries were reported. Cunningham probably will be able to start at tackle, having recovered from illness.

Bolster Hiram Offensive.
HIRAM—Coach Pritchard was drilling his athletes this week on offensive tactics in preparation for the trip to Columbus this week-end to tackle Capital. Barr, quarterback, and Stefan, at tackle, are recovering from injuries and may start the Capital game.

Await Southerners.
CINCINNATI—St. Xavier Musketeers today were working in deadly earnest, preparing for the invasion of

Wilce Shakes Up Ohio Squad For Michigan

Will Have Three Running Backs, Instead of One.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19.—A drastic revamping of the lineup of the Ohio State football team, when it takes the field against the Wolverines at Ann Arbor next Saturday afternoon, is in prospect, according to all indications today.

Three running backs will be included in the starting lineup. If present plans of Coach Jack Wilce are carried out, marking a departure from Wilce's well-known system of one runner, one line player and two blocking backs.

In practice sessions this week, as an aftermath of the Northwestern disaster last Saturday, Wilce has been using Freddy Grim at quarterback, Marek and Houston at the halves, and Olsner at full. Grim, Marek and Houston formerly were used at the running back positions. Byron Eby, the Chillicothe star, is scheduled to be in the starting lineup against Michigan, but the other backfield positions are in doubt.

Wilce has evidenced displeasure at the showing made by his line in the Northwestern tilt, and many substitutes have been appearing in the regular line positions at the practice sessions. Bill Young relieved Captain Meyer at guard, Schmidt replaced Ullery at center, Nesser substituted for Irldill at tackle, and Ackerman relieved Deb Rowan at right end.

The entire squad is in good shape so far as injuries are concerned, despite the tough going against Northwestern, and the team will be in the best condition of the season physically against Michigan, barring accidents meanwhile.

Fight Results

AT CHICAGO—Jimmy McLarnin, Los Angeles lightweight, knocked out Louis ("Kid") Kaplan, former featherweight champion, in eighth round.

Archie Bell, Brooklyn bantamweight, knocked out Kid Lenclo, Mexico City, in fifth round.

Roleaux Sagrado, Cuban light heavyweight, kayoed Earl Blue, Fargo, N. D., in third round.

Sammy McLarnin, Los Angeles, won decision over Joe O'Malley, Chicago, six rounds.

At Reading, Pa.—Pabe McGorray, New York middleweight, won from Bobby Brown, Atlantic City, N. J., 8 rounds.

AT HARRISBURG, Pa.—Abe Cohen, New York, drew with George Tully, Philadelphia, 8 rounds.

AT PORTLAND, Me.—Johnny Curcio, Providence, outpointed Fernand Blampain, French Middleweight, 6 rounds.

Duke Menard, Biddeford, Maine, won from Jim Picard, Boston, 6 rounds.

Joey Ross, Lynn, Mass., kayoed Johnny Troy, Boston welterweight, in third round.

AT INDIANAPOLIS—Reamer Roberts, Indianapolis, knocked out George Ross, Pittsburgh.

AT DENVER—Sticker Cohen, Denver, stopped Billy Bonillas, Taft, Cal.

AT DES MOINES—Eddie Dwyer, Hutchinson, Kan., won from Steve Koran, St. Paul, Kenneth Hunt, Des Moines, outpointed Leo Rellinger, Waterloo, Ia.

AT SAN ANTONIO—Carlos Garcia, Mexico City, scored technical knockout over Dick Wymore, Minneapolis.

Bearcats Feel Good.
CINCINNATI—Elated over their wonderful defense against the strong Dayton squad last Saturday, Cincinnati university's gridirers today were working hard in preparation for the Marietta game this week-end. Only 12 men were used by Coach Babcock in the Dayton game, and there were no serious injuries. Pete Waldman, Dick Dial and Syl Kunz, who have been on the injured list, expect to be in condition to start against Marietta.

Build New Attack.
ATHENS—With "Pete" McKinley, star halfback, definitely out of the lineup with a serious shoulder injury, Ohio university coaches were devising a new attack built around Robinson, rated one of the best forward passers on the squad.

Correct Marietta Faults.
MARIETTA—Shifts in the lineup to correct weaknesses revealed in the game with Ohio university last week, probably will be made by Marietta coaches for the University of Cincinnati game. Lincoln Schmidt, heretofore a sub, has probably won a regular berth at end by his fine performance, substituting for Latimer. Joe Porter, guard, also will probably be shifted to tackle position on defense.

Oberlin in Trim.
OBERLIN—Oberlin's varsity gridirers settled down today to hard work in anticipation of the Miami game at Oxford this week, regarded as one of the most important on the schedule of either team. Oberlin suffered no injuries in the Reserve game, and the line is reported at the height of its form. Freshmen team was running Miami offensive plays today.

PRO GRID GAME TOUGH RACKET THINKS BENNY

THIS is one sweet, tough racket, what I mean, and no kidding.

It is Mr. Benny Friedman speaking, Mr. Friedman, erstwhile quarterback of Michigan and, according to his former mentor, ex-Coach Fielding H. Yost, the greatest, signal caller Yost has ever seen.

And Benny is referring to professional football.

"Are these boys good?" Benny says. "I'll tell the world. In college games you occasionally bump up against a boy who is hot stuff, but most of the times it's easy."

"But pro football—that's a horse from an entirely new stable."

According to Benny, who is now star and boss of the Cleveland professionals, a professional football team is a team of 11 stars and not one.

Friedman, in his first game as a pro this year, found that his opponents were as smart as his own men and as tough. There were no easy marks, because easy marks can't hold jobs on pro teams.

Fresh from great triumphs at Michigan, Benny enthusiastically took over his new grid job which paid in good old coin as well as thrills. In the first two games of the season Benny and his band were tanned—and tanned good and proper.

"As a spectacle this business can't compare to college football," Benny now says, "but as a game it is better and a doggone sight harder."

Six Specials Take O.S. Fans To Big Game

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19.—Six special trains will carry many of the 10,000 Columbus football fans who are expected to attend the annual Ohio-Michigan game at Michigan's stadium in Ann Arbor Saturday afternoon. The New York Central and Hocking Valley roads will operate the specials, leaving union station here at five minute intervals after 7 a. m. Saturday. Each train will carry about ten coaches.

Nearly 10,000 Columbus fans already have made stadium reservations through Henry Taylor, in charge of ticket sales at the university. Thirty-five hundred of these ticket sales were made to students.

Thousands of persons from other Ohio cities will see the game, many going in automobiles. Hundreds of Ohio fans who were unable to obtain tickets from those allotted to the university contingent will see the game

HURST'S HIGH SQUAD PACKS SPEED THREAT

Elmer English, Cinder Path Sprint Star, May do More Scoring for Blue and White Combination This Season.

If it were possible for Coach Joe Hurst, or any coach for that matter, to perfect an almost flawless interference system that would get a man like Elmer English past the line of scrimmage, with a mate or two to spare against secondary defense, what couldn't be done with the speed this backfield star possesses?

Give him the ball, a hard hitting interference that would send him on his way and a few seconds later, where would he be? Down by the goal posts. He's just that kind of a guy. They'd never see him after he started.

And in all likelihood, Hurst will find a way to utilize that speed before the season is much older. Perhaps he will decide to throw a fast, open attack against Martins Ferry and Belaire. He knows both teams and their styles, through experiences while he was steering the Adena grid craft in Jefferson county.

Licked Martins Ferry.
With his Adena eleven, and its not a big school either, in on season recently he licked Martins Ferry once and was defeated once. On the latter occasion, his team had a chance to score—probably did score. If the truth were known—when the ball carrier, plunging from the one-yard line, surged over the goal line but in the face of opposition weight, was carried back a foot or so and the officials called the ball dead where it stopped.

However, getting back to English, which would be a tough job if he was going away from you, there is probably no runner in the county, perhaps district, at the present time, that can equal his ability to fly over the ground.

Develops Speed Streak.
If the truth is known, he startled even his own team mates, perhaps himself, when he raced for two touchdowns at East Palestine last Saturday. The East Palestine team, naturally, did not furnish opposition that can be expected from other schools on the card, but, at the same time, there was little attempt at organized interference, especially on his second run when he started toward the right side of the field, found it blocked, turned around and circled the other flank.

Jim Thorpe used to do those kinds of tricks. It's not a common occurrence to see a high school backfield man doing the same thing.

But the speed is there and if the weatherman provides a little dry ground now and then and other accessories plans could be worked out, East Liverpool high would have a scoring threat every minute of its offensive play.

Run him around either end, shoot him out after passes and watch him run!

But It's a Hard Job.
However, it's more difficult than might be imagined at first, this business of building flawless interference. It's a big phase of the game in itself. If Hurst had a man something on the order of Britton, old Illinois star who led the Illinois interference and who was probably fifty percent responsible for "Red" Grange's spectacular performances, the rest would be easy.

The local backs have performed wonderfully thus far in view of the fact that there was not a 1927 regular to return this year and it is possible something might develop yet.

Golf Champ

Mrs. Helen Payson, of Portland, Me., won the Duchess of Connaught's gold cup, emblematic of the Canadian women's golf championship by defeating Miss Fritz Stifel of Wheeling, W. Va., in the final match at Toronto, Ont. It is the first time since 1924 the trophy has come to the United States.
